ABOUT ME

I grew up in a quiet provincial area surrounded by my family, where life was simple, warm, and filled with small but meaningful moments. Growing up, I was naturally shy and introverted, often keeping to myself, but spending time with my siblings, cousins, and close friends slowly helped me open up and become more expressive. My family played a big role in shaping who I am, teaching me values such as respect, responsibility, and perseverance that guide me in everyday life. The friendships I formed were built on trust, comfort, and shared experiences, making even ordinary days memorable. Simple activities like exploring the neighborhood, sharing laughter, and spending time together gave me a strong sense of security and belonging. Over time, these experiences helped me balance my introverted nature with a more outgoing side when I feel comfortable. Looking back, growing up this way taught me resilience, self-awareness, and a deep appreciation for meaningful connections.

HOBBIES

Creative Hobbies:

I started drawing and painting when I was just 5 years old. Over the years, it became more than just a pastime, and during the pandemic, I really focused on improving my skills.

I've been journaling and scrapbooking since high school. I love collecting memories, little notes, photos, and turning them into creative scrapbooks.

My love for photography began when I joined photojournalism. After that, I couldn't stop capturing moments whether it's nature, friends, or random scenes that catch my eye.

Relaxing Hobbies:

I listen to music almost 24/7. Fun fact: my Spotify listening time actually reached 113,716 minutes. Music keeps me energized, motivated, or calm, depending on my mood, and podcasts keep my mind curious.

I grew up playing video games with my boy cousins, and that's how I got interested in gaming. I've played WWE, GTA, Tekken, and car racing games, but now I mostly enjoy The Sims 4.

QUOTE

“Live for the moments
you can't put into words.” — Harry Styles

For me, this quote is about slowing down and appreciating life beyond routines and responsibilities, allowing myself to be present in moments that don't need structure, validation, or explanation. It reminds me that not everything has to be planned or understood—some moments are meaningful simply because they are felt and remembered. These moments help me stay grounded and remind me why balance and presence matter in everyday life.
